There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circular and testimonials. Address:

For Thin Babies

Fat is of great account to a baby; that is why babies are fat. If your baby is scrawny, Scott's Emulsion is what he wants. The healthy baby stores as fat what it does not need immediately for bone and muscle. Fat babies are happy; they do not cry; they are rich; their fat is laid up for time of need. They are happy because they are comfortable. The fat surrounds their little nerves and cushions them. When they are scrawny those nerves are hurt at every ungentle touch. They delight in Scott's Emulsion. It is as sweet as wholesome to them.

Send for free sample.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

Huge Task.

It was a huge task to undertake the cure of such a bad case of kidney disease, as that of C. F. Collier, of Cherokee, Iowa, but Electric Bitters did it. He writes: "My kidneys were so far gone, I could not sit on a chair without a cushion; and suffered from dreadful backache, headache and depression. In Electric Bitters, however, I found a cure, and by them was restored to perfect health. I recommend this great tonic medicine to all with weak kidneys, liver or stomach." Guaranteed by Oberdorfer, the druggist. Price 50c.

Fortunate Missourians.

"When I was a druggist at Livonia, Mo.," writes T. J. Dwyer, now of Graysville, Mo., "three of my customers were permanently cured of consumption by Dr. King's New Discovery, and are well and strong today. One was trying to sell his property and move to Arizona, but after using New Discovery a short time he found it unnecessary to do so. I regard Dr. King's New Discovery as the most wonderful medicine in existence." Surest cough and cold cure and throat and lung healer. Guaranteed by Oberdorfer, the druggist. 50c and 1.00. Dangers of Defective Plumbing!

Defective plumbing permits the entrance into the house of sewer gas bearing germs of contagious disease to which the human system readily succumbs. Sewer gas is not necessarily generated in the sewer, but is frequently created in the plumbing system within the home and enters the apartments through defective fixtures. If in doubt consult us regarding the piping and repairing defective fixtures with "STANDARD" Porcelain Enamelled Ware, acknowledged as the best sanitary equipment.

READ AND YOU WILL LEARN

That the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice endorse and recommend, in the strongest terms possible, each and every ingredient entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the cure of weak stomach, dyspepsia, throat and lung diseases (except consumption) accompanied with severe coughs. It is not so good for acute colds and coughs, but for lingering, or chronic cases it is especially efficacious in producing perfect cures. It contains Black Cherry bark, Golden Seal root, Bloodroot, Stone root, Mandrake root and Queen's root—all of which are highly praised as remedies for all the above mentioned affections by such eminent medical writers and teachers as Prof. Bartholow, of Jefferson Med. College; Prof. Hare, of the Univ. of Pa.; Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., late of Cincinnati; Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., late of Cincinnati; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago, and scores of others equally eminent in their several schools of practice.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is the only medicine put up for sale through druggists for like purposes, that has any such professional endorsement—worth more than any number of ordinary testimonials. Open publicity of its formula on the bottle wrapper is the best possible guaranty of its merits. A glance at this published formula will show that "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no poisonous or harmful agents and no alcohol—chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead. Glycerine is entirely unobjectionable and besides is a most useful ingredient in the cure of all stomach and lung diseases, throat and lung affections. There is the highest medical authority for its use in all such cases. The "Discovery" is a concentrated glyceric extract of native, medicinal roots and is safe and reliable.

A booklet of extracts from eminent medical authorities, endorsing its ingredients mailed free on request. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Patsy Doodle

By Harriet Batchelor Bradner

Copyright, 1906, by Ruby Douglas

Hadley's horse was stepping slowly down the country road, with an occasional toss of his high bred head whenever a familiar fly alighted on his glossy coat. The reins lay inertly in the young doctor's hands, for his mind was far afield. After a long silence he turned to the girl beside him and asked in a voice that he could not keep quite steady:

"Your answer is final, then? You won't marry me? And you—you don't love me?" he added, with a helpless movement of his head. "Why, Elizabeth, I can't realize it; I really cannot." And the blue eyes he turned on her were full of tears.

"I—Edward," she began, "Edward, I can't bear to hurt you, but—" And her voice lost itself in a quick sob.

The young man put a quivering hand over the ones she had locked in her lap.

"Don't cry, little Bess," he said huskily. "It hurts me terribly to see you. If you can't love me, you can't, I suppose, and I'll have to bear it like many another man. But I—well, I loved you so much that it didn't seem possible that you could help liking me—just a little."

That this humble, suffering man could be the same cold, unmoved person who had, only a short time since, with such reluctance and ill concealed impatience, left her for the bedside of a dying old woman seemed incredible to Elizabeth. But she clung to her decision to give him up, a course of action made imperative by the dictates of her reason, so she answered hesitatingly:

"I am so sorry, Edward, but I can't."

They rode along in silence, the thoroughbred moving with nearly noiseless steps, and as they were turning an abrupt bend in the road half a mile farther down a thin groan struck up from the tall wayside weeds. Hadley brought his horse to a standstill by a violent jerk.

RAISED HIM WITH A GENTLENESS OF MOVEMENT WHICH WAS A REVELATION.

"What's that?" he asked sharply.

"Listen!"

Again the sound was repeated—a faint, piteous note of pain.

"It's a baby," declared Elizabeth, trembling, "and it's hurt."

Hadley was already poised between the wheels of the runaway and in an instant was striding through the long grass, which he suddenly stooped to part. After an appreciable space he straightened up and held out a hand to Elizabeth, who had followed him, and the girl's fingers closed tightly over it as she leaned forward to peer into the grass.

"Oh, Ned, a puppy!" she exclaimed, relief and fresh pity blending in her voice, for at their feet lay a poor little morsel of a dog. His little black nose was dry and bleached with pain, and the soft curly white of his hair, through which the skin showed faintly pink, was soiled by blood and dirt, and, saddest of all, one tiny hind leg lay shattered and limp in a pool of blood.

"Some brute has run over him and chucked him in the gutter to die," Hadley said between his teeth. "I only wish I knew who it was."

In a moment he stooped and, slipping his hands under the little creature, raised him with a gentleness of movement which was a revelation to Elizabeth and which filled her eyes with sudden tears.

"I'll have to ask you to drive," said the doctor as he got in the runaway after her; "it would hurt cruelly to put him down." And then as he saw the anxious questioning of her eyes he answered: "I think I can fix him up all right. The leg is badly broken, but he's so young I think it will mend quickly." He fell to watching the quivering heart beat against the tiny ribs. The tip of a pale little tongue just showed in the dry mouth, and a great brown ear fringed with black drooped listlessly against the white pulsing throat.

"Isn't he beautiful?" sighed the girl. "How like a little hurt child he looks! What does make people so careless and so cruel?" As she turned her head sorrowfully away her glance fell upon a small boy standing by the roadside.

"Little boy," she called, stopping the horse, "do you know whose dog this is?"

A pair of stolid eyes were obediently focused upon the puppy.

"Yep," he announced after a moment's survey; "that's Sammy Casey's Patsy Doodle. No; you can't find Sammy. Him an' his maw moved to Plattsville day 'for' yeste'day. She's a widow woman. Course they didn't take him—dorgs is too easy got-an' they had 'nough to cart along 'thout Patsy Doodle. Why, they had three"—But, her interest in the Casey's movements having been satisfied, Elizabeth suddenly touched the horse with the whip, and in a moment they had left the disconsolate urchin far behind.

Once in Hadley's office the little dog was deposited upon the table and his broken leg boud up with deft and tender fingers. With the intelligence often vouchsafed his kind, Patsy Doodle seemed content to lie quite still and relaxed in the atmosphere of sympathy. So motionless was his attitude that they thought he was sleeping, but when Elizabeth withdrew her hand from the head she had been softly stroking the great brown eyes, still bloodshot with pain, opened immediately with an anxious expression, and the puppy lifted his drooping ears inquiringly.

"See, Bess; he misses your touch," said Hadley, dropping the towel with which he was drying his hands.

With a murmur of tenderness, Elizabeth slipped her hand under the soft little head, and after a snuggling movement of the nose, which was becoming moist again, Patsy Doodle gave a little breathing of content and, closing his beautiful eyes, fell asleep, like a tired child.

When the office had been restored to its former immaculate order Hadley walked to the open window and stood looking moodily out upon the summer street, but when Elizabeth stirred in her chair he turned quickly, for his mind was centered only upon the occupants of the office. She beckoned him, and he came across at once, seating himself on a corner of the table.

For a moment neither spoke; then the girl lifted her face and said in a tone that thrilled her companion:

"Ned, dear, I've done you a horrible injustice."

Hadley leaned forward suddenly.

"How?" he asked, with eager eyes.

Elizabeth caught a fluttering breath. "You remember the night they brought you the message that that old lady was dying and how you hated to go? Well, I thought your profession had made you cold and hard and unfeeling, as it has so many men, and after you had gone I—I decided that I couldn't love a man like that—" Her voice trailed off uncertainly.

The doctor's eyes darkened. "That's another and the worst of the tricks that miserable old woman has played me!" he declared hotly. "Sweetheart"—his eyes claimed her attention—"I knew there wasn't a thing on earth the matter with her when they sent for me. Some member of her family had probably got up sufficient nerve to put into execution a long cherished plan or something of that sort. She'd been dying regularly for the last two years whenever things didn't go to suit her. And to think she came so near separating us!" He slipped his hand under the one in which the little dog's head lay. "I owe everything to the intervention of Sammy Casey's Patsy Doodle."

"Our Patsy Doodle," gently corrected Elizabeth.

The Best Thing He Said.

An entertainer and humorist one afternoon recently had just made his bow and was about to begin, when a cat walked in and sat down on the stage. With quick wit he said severely, "You get out; this is a monologue, not a catalogue," which was unanimously voted the best bit of his entertainment—Christian Register.
